And as the longest night is, in all latitudes, equal to the longest day, the people that live at South Cape in Spitsbergen, or 76 north latitude, never see the sun for no days successively, except by refraction. At North Cape, Lapland, or latitude 71, continual day To find when the longest night begins and ends, proceed as before, bringing the ascending and descending points of the ecliptic to the stall) instead of the northern part of the ecliptic begins about the middle of May, and lasts to the end of July; and continual night begins about the middle of November, and lasts till about the end of January. Examples for practice. 104. What is the length of continual day at the north part of Nova Zembla? 105. When does continual day begin in Davis's Straits? 106. When does the sun begin to shine without intermission in latitude 60 north, and what is the length of continual day there? Problem XXVI.--To explain the phenomenon of the harvest-moon. Obs. The harvest-moon is the full moon, which happens at or near the time of the autumnal equinox, when a few nights before and after the full, the moon rises nearly at the same time, 1011 account of the horizon being nearly parallel to that part of her orbit at which she then is. Rule.--Rectify the globe for the latitude; and the moon's place in White's, or any other Ephemeris, for four or five days...
