Yet, if we overcome through the blood of the Lamb, we shall not be hurt of the second death. The conflict is sharp, the victory most difficult, owing to the evil of our hearts, the deceitfulness of the world, and the wiles and malice of the devil. But the believer can say, Thanks be to God, for He hath delivered my soul from the nethermost hell. Is this our experience? Have we been taught that, but for redeeming grace, the second death must have been ours? Have we been taught that, but for restraining grace, we should even now fall from the narrow and difficult path to heaven? Or do we think that we deserve eternal happiness, and that hell can never be our portion? Even the full assurance of hope which is given to the advanced believer, does not dim his sense of the danger from which he has been snatched, and of the necessity of constant fear lest he should come short of the promised rest. The way of fear and trembling is the way of safety. But while we work out our salvation with fear and trembling, let us rejoice in the Saviour's assurance-- He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. A charge to keep I have, A God to glorify, A never-dying soul to save, And fit it for the sky. To serve the present age, My calling to fulfil;...
